

Thomas J. Smith, DDS, MS, JD, FCLM practiced general dentistry prior to embarking on a long career in dental education from which he recently retired. He spent most of his career as a professor and department chair or clinical administrator and has focused his teaching on the processes of diagnosis and treatment planning, bioethics and health law, and patient records. Also, as a graduate school professor in clinical health sciences he has created and taught various courses in bioethics and health law to healthcare students and providers. He continues to teach on an ad hoc basis. He received his BS and DDS degrees from Western Reserve University, his MS degree in physical oral biology from Case Western Reserve University, and his JD degree from William Mitchell College of Law. Dr. Smith is a Fellow in the American College of Legal Medicine and a member of the ACLM Board of Governors.