

Darren P. Mareiniss, MD, JD, MBe, is a cum laude graduate of Dartmouth College, where he received an AB in genetics and developmental biology. Subsequently, Dr. Mareiniss received his MD from the NYU School of Medicine, where he was a member of the Alpha Omega Alpha Medical Honor Society, and then pursued graduate medical training in general surgery. Dr. Mareiniss completed his surgical internship at NYU-Bellevue and went on to residency training in general surgery at UT Southwestern Medical Center at Dallas-Parkland Hospital. Dr. Mareiniss received his JD from the University of Pennsylvania Law School and a Masters of Bioethics from the University of Pennsylvania School of Medicine.

Dr. Mareiniss has published and lectured on bioethics, medico-legal topics and disaster preparedness. He is a fellow of the American College of Legal Medicine and sits on several committees. Currently, Dr. Mareiniss is an attorney with the IP/Patent Law Group of Dechert, LLP, in Austin, Texas, and is also an adjunct professor at the University of Texas School of Law, where he teaches Disaster Preparedness and the Law. In addition, he is a senior consultant for Medical and Legal Policy at the University of Maryland Center for Health and Homeland Security, focusing on pandemic influenza preparedness. Dr. Mareiniss is licensed to practice law in Texas and licensed to practice medicine in New York, New Jersey and Maryland.